A Queer Transformation.
NEW YORK, March 16.—Deputy United States Marshal Bernhard boarded the steamer Ameli, just arrived from Hamburg. He had with him a description of a Prussian forger whose arrest had been asked by cable. Fitz Haager is the name of the man who was wanted. He is described by the Prussian authorities as a person 36 years of age under medium height, very slender, with shallow complexion and a slight blonde mustache.

The marshal looked over each of the Ameli's 400 passengers, but found no one in any way answered the description. He had received information that the man was on board and was at a loss to know how to find him. What he finally did do was to have it announced that he was in search of two good men whom he wished to employ at good wages. A burly and bewhiskered personage soon offered his services, and the marshal asked the purser the name of the applicant. He was astonished to learn that the man's name was Fritz Haager, and that he made no effort to conceal the fact.

He was taken to the Ludlow street jail, and will be taken before United States Commissioner Alexander for examination.

Convention Rates.
CHICAGO, March 16.—The Central Traffic association has made a single fare round trip rate to the Minneapolis convention, good from June 2 to June 25. The Chicago convention gets the same rate announced, good from June 16 to July 8.

What I Know About Hardware and the Future of Cotton.

The newspaper predictions that cotton may go as low as 3 or 4 cents a pound, need not frighten the planters. Cotton does not grow like weeds. In spite of constant care and attention the crop often fails from a variety of conditions. Planters near the northern line of the cotton belt can beat us raising stock and grain, they as well as all planters who have to buy expensive fertilizers, will reduce the cotton acreage without being told to do so by the Alliance and the press. After all the gratuitous advice, the Central Texas planter has nothing to rely on, as a money crop, but cotton. In live stock he has as poor a market as in cotton. In grain, he can never compete with the middle states and the Northwest. Fruit fails too often. In cotton, Central Texas can beat any country in the world. If our farmers would raise their meat and bread and never buy in the store what they can raise on their farms, keep out of debt, do their own thinking, and more of their own work, they would prosper, no matter what the price of cotton is. The recent chilly winds will soon give way to hot and fiery blasts of the tropics. The hardware man has turned the suffering of a southern summer into pleasure. The water cooler has the ever ready cool drink. The refrigerator keeps your victuals sweet and pure. The screen doors and windows keep insects away from you. The lawn mower, lawn rake and hose keep your lawn green and flowers fresh, and a Hartman's steel fence protects them. All these things of the best quality and at the lowest prices are for sale at Ed. Strauss', Corner Fourth and Mary Streets

THE ISHAM BROWN INQUEST.

Justice Harrison Hears Testimony in the Case.

At Justice Harrison's court this morning evidence was taken in the matter of the inquest held on Monday the 14th of March over the body of Isham Brown, who was shot by Gus Tinsley March 9th and died at the home of W. M. Amos five miles south of Waco March 13th.

The day after the unfortunate young man died Judge Harrison, acting as coroner, visited the home of Mr. Amos, where young Brown lived and, finding him dead, examined his wounds to determine the cause of his death. After complying with the requirements of the law by performing this duty, the coroner, in deference to the feelings of the friends of the deceased, adjourned the inquest over until this morning, that the burial rites might not be interfered with by consuming the time of witnesses, who desired to attend the funeral ceremonies. Isham Brown was laid to rest on last Monday surrounded alike by his friends and the relatives of the men at whose hands he met his fate. It would be hard to say, from whose hearts flowed the deeper sorrow, regret and sympathy, the friends of the dead or the relatives and friends of the living.

The testimony of the witnesses is too voluminous to permit of publication to day it being about noon before the same was obtained. The witnesses however, corroborated each other as to the facts in the case and the evidence points very conclusively to a case of accidental shooting.
